TUESDAY EVENING APRIL 9

THE TICKET "SCALPER,"-The class of business men formerly called "scalpers" are looked upon to day by railway managements and the traveling public generally as indispensable to the business of one and the convenience of the other. Ticket brokers are now numbered by the hundreds. So far as I can learn, the original "scalper" was Lansing, of Baltimore, the president of the largest of the national associations of ticket brokers. He was fifteen years ago, a hotel clerk in Baltimore, and when thus engaged it frequently fell into his line to buy at a bargain and sell at a prefit unused portions of railroad tickets. He saw there was money in the business, and hung out a sign "Railroad tickets bought, sold or exthroughout the east, and from the pedding of unused portions of tickets grew the present far reaching system, for it must be un-derstood that if the business of the ticket broker was confined to the sale of return coupons, etc., one man could do all the bust ness done in St. Louis, and he would starve to death at it .- Globe Democrat
